

ICLE is a self-supporting nonprofit organization, co-sponsored by the State Bar of Michigan and the law schools of Michigan. We appreciate the contributions of practicing lawyers to these resources. Please help us keep costs down for all users by adhering to these terms and conditions.

As of October 2009, MI Law Online is provided solely by ICLE, and is free for ICLE Partners, Online Library subscribers, and Online Book subscribers.

Terms and Conditions of Use
ICLE Online Resources

These conditions apply to all uses of ICLE's Online Resources. By using the resources, you agree to the following:

1. These conditions govern my use of all ICLE Online Resources—ICLE's Online Books and Online Library, the ICLE Partnership, Live and Archived Webcasts, MP3 Downloads, and MI Law Online.
2. The ICLE Online Resources are copyrighted publications. All rights belong to ICLE or its third-party contributors.
3. I may use the ICLE Online Resources only for my own law practice or legal research.
4. While I have an active subscription, I may
  - Access, search, retrieve and view the ICLE Online Resources in the normal course of my law practice or legal research;
  - Quote and excerpt from them (with appropriate credit) by electronic cutting and pasting in the documents I create for my law practice;
  - Print out reasonable portions for internal use;
  - Download and adapt selected forms that I am using for client matters;
  - Access and view the audio and video for a Webcast seminar and print out a copy of the seminar materials; and
  - Download MP3 files of seminars.
5. Other than these permitted uses, I may not share, copy, give away, display, reuse or resell the material in the ICLE Online Resources. For example, I may not--
  - Download, copy, or electronically transmit significant portions (as determined by ICLE) of these materials
  - Download significant portions to use after my subscription expires
  - Obtain material for others outside my firm
  - Download or save a copy of the audio/video files for a Webcast
  - Share my MP3 Downloads with others
  - Share my user name and password with others outside my firm.
  - Create hyperlinks to ICLE materials without ICLE's prior written consent.

- Recreate or reverse engineer the features or contents of MI Law Online, except for usage in the normal course of the user's legal research

Examples of permitted uses: you copy 30 pages of an online book to help with research on a brief, or you've used 50 forms from the FormBank during your Partnership year, and your edited forms are stored on your computer. You do legal research in MI Law Online, and download 10 cases for use in writing a brief. These uses are typical for an active user in the normal course of law practice or legal research.

Examples of uses that are not permitted: You copy a book chapter or a How-To Kit and email it to a lawyer outside your firm, post it in a listserv or on the Internet; you assign your secretary to save 100 forms in case you want to use them after your subscription expires; or you invite others outside your firm to view a Live or Archived Webcast you have registered for.

6. I also understand that ICLE provides the Online Resources on an "as is, as available" basis, and expressly disclaims all warranties. These services and information do not constitute legal advice, and their use is not a substitute for my own independent professional judgment.

Click on the links to read the complete subscriber agreement for ICLE's Online Books, Online Library, Partnership, MI Law Online*, or terms of use for Webcasts/MP3 Downloads. If you have any questions about what is permitted, please call ICLE at (877) 229-4350.

*For paid subscribers to MI Law Online only; Partners and Online Library/Book subscribers are covered by their subscription agreements.

Rev. 09-2009